CHIEF JUSTICE ARCHAMBAULT
NOW A KNIGHT BACHELOR.

Quebec Jurist Was Born In L'Assumption, Que., and Received His Degree of Doctor of Law at Laval, Where He Later Became a Professor—He Is Also Active in the World of Politics.

Among the distinguished Canadians who received New Year's honors from King George is Hon. Horace Archambault, Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench of the Province of Alberta. He was created a knight bachelor.

Sir Horace is an uncommonly able speaker and a painstaking Judge. He was born in L'Assumption, Quebec, and received his early education in CHIEF JUSTICE HORACE ARCHAMBAULT was born in L'Assumption, Quebec, where he received the degree of doctor of law in 1883. He became professor of commercial and maritime law in Laval and was later a member of the Quebec Bar. In 1900 he was appointed to the Superior Court. Judge, and two years later was appointed puisne judge of the King's Bench of Quebec. From 1905 to 1910 he was a member of the Legislative Council. In political life he was a strict autocrat in Quebec affairs.

Sir Horace is in his 57th year, and is a brother of Rt. Rev. Joseph Alfred Archambault.

Monarch of Arms

One of the most interesting little kingdoms in the British dominions is the island off E. coast of Scotland, not always suspected of having a monarch of its own.

Arran, this little island kingdom, is owned by a lady, the beautiful marchioness of Graham, wife of the eldest son and heir of the Duke of Montrose. The marchioness inherited this little monarchy from the late Duke of Montrose, whose only child she was. As some of our readers will remember, the marchioness rules wisely and well over loyal subjects, numbering in all nearly 5,000. The island which gave 19 miles long and 1-1/2 square miles, has had a romantic history.

Along the cliffs of the south coast there are several large caverns, one being known as the King's Cave. Here King Bruce is said to have hidden himself for some time, while it was from Brodick that Bruce sailed to Carrick on his expedition for the recovery of the crown. There are many ruined castles, too, such as Lochranza, once the residence of the Scots kings. Then there are cairns, standing stones and stone circles.

Gull-Runners Busy.

British Indian troops have just left Bombay for the Persian Gulf. In all accounts, the gunners in the Royal Artillery are the best in the game, and they seem to have entered the field with greater zest than in the past. What is more remarkable is the range of action of the smugglers. The whole of the Gulf now seems to have become the hunting-field of the smugglers. In spite of the inventive measures adopted by the Sultan of Muscat in the smuggling of arms and ammunition, and there seems no immediate prospect of its coming to an end. The Royal Artillery made ships in the Gulf are faring well, but the arms traffic, and the mixed population of Arabs and Persians along the route now openly resists interference of any sort by Britain with their trade, as far as possible. On the other hand, as far as the Tigris and the Mohammedans are concerned, there is a definite stand taken by the Arabs on the Tigris. If the Arabs and the Persians are as aggressive as ever, and at present, there will be no other alternative left for Great Britain but to increase the number of her troops in places on the Gulf.

No Owner for $2,500.

The town clerk of Carmarthen made a statement to the council regarding a sum of £2,500 of which he is the owner. This money had been raised by a fete in 1897 to help to provide a Volunteer drill-hall to commemorate the Duke of Wellington. No hall had been built, and the Volunteer force was extinct. Several attempts had been made to get the money repaid; claims had been put in by the National Relief Committee, and by the local infirmary, but so far the money was still locked up, and income-tax was paid regularly on it every year.

London-Dublin Telephone.

A new cable has been laid by the post offices across the Irish Sea, so that Dublin and London may be brought in direct telephonic communication.

TOUGH TRAVELING.

How It Feels to Work Hard Without a Rest for Sixteen Days.

Among the extraordinary tales of adventure, narrow escapes, and hardships, which A. H. Savage-Lander, the famous English explorer, has brought back from the far corners of the earth, few can equal the credulity of readers of his book of travels to the utmost. He writes that his experience showed "that it is possible for people to go at least 16 days without food while doing hard work."

Mr. Savage-Lander traveled altogether 14,000 miles through the unknown interior of South America. He found the greatest difficulty in finding men to accompany him. Finally by offering pecuniary inducements absolutely dazzling in the eyes of the Brazilian natives, he secured a crew of six ex-convicts. These fellows knew him not end of trouble.

They mutinied at the least provocation, and scattered him over land and sea, exposing the explorer's life.

But nothing sufficed to bring him back. Pushing onward into the wilderness, amid scenes of surpassing beauty, he and his crew had to travel on foot for them selves hundreds of miles from the last vestige of civilization and wholly without food. For sixteen days they struggled on without anything to eat.

He speaks eloquently of the effect which gnawing hunger had on himself and his men. Some of his companions seemed on the point of losing their wits. They insisted that they "must" eat, and other noises about them, though there was not another person for miles roundabout. As to the effects of the sixteen days of privation on himself, the explorer writes:

"It is curious how hunger works on your brain. I am an amateur, and have never had much of good fortune or misfortune. But while I was starving I could see before me morning till night, in my imagination, all kinds of delicious feasts. Russian soups, sarcasmus aviculae, thousands of miles of refreshing ice-creams, and plum pudding. Curiously enough, some days I had a perfect craving for one particular dish, and would have given everything I possessed to the world, to obtain a morsel of it. The next day I did not care for that at all, in my imagination, but wanted something else, and so on. I had a desire for everything which I mostly craved while I was starving: eavare, galantine of chicken, and cream—the latter particularly."

What makes him speak so graphically is the fact that he was hardly "lined" with money. He had "his partner" $30,000, of which $20,000 was in actual cash, yet he could not buy even a simple meal.

The difficulties to be encountered in that long struggle "as ants" are told in the stirring story of the travails he has suffered in his quest of gold. He has destroyed the upper parts, leaving the hard leather seats. They cut the hammock struts in pieces, and even the top, and when the trunks fell down in a faint as they frequently did during the last days of his particular journey, ants swarmed over them, eating away the skin from their faces.

Heavy thorns which pierced the blackest shoes and tore away the strongest leather, rain was constant, the small party encountering some terrible storms. "We had not been dry or warm since the beginning of the journey," he writes, "and we were now at the end of September." Through all this, however, the expedition surmounted ranges of hills, etc. it was through tangled underbrush, and over turbulent rivers, and a very respectable number of miles every day.

Lure of the Serpentines.

There is a hardy race of serpentine swimmers in the Serpentine Club, which has been regularly swimming in them. He has been swimming in the Serpentine for fifty years. His two sons are also members, and a recent incident has increased his father and his two sons swimming in the same race. Another father and his son have been swimming in the Serpentine, Mr. A. E. Lawes and Mr. F. E. Lawes, who were respectively first and second in the final.

Good Advice Appreciated.

Here is a story of King George of England when a boy at school. Having spent hisallowance too rapidly, he appealed to his grandfather for aid. Queen Victoria, however, had fed the young man's spendthrift tendencies, wrote in ten of guineas remonstrance, but sent no money. In due course came this reply:

"Dearest Grandpa, I received your letter and hope you will not think I was disappointed because you could not send me 'ny money.'

"I was very kind of you to give me good guidances."

Plaza Pronunciation.

The "Plaza" in Covent Garden, London, is a large arched space on the north and east sides of the market, and, probably, the only surviving instance of old-time Cockney pronunciation. For when it was built the market to attempt to, they called it, and continue to call it, the "Pee-sachas." Is there another place in London that is so curiously pronounced? — London Daily Chronicle.

Hard Divorces.

Divorces are more difficult to obtain in England than in any other civilized country.

WHERE ONE MAY USE JAPANESE CRASH.

(By Biles Carman.)

Japanese toweling, or coolee cloth, as it is called, has been exploited quite a little of late, but new ways of employing it in decoration are continually being found. In fact, there seems to be no limit to the possibilities.

Anything that has properties of color, fabric, can hardly be imagined. Gauze and bedspreads have been sold in the oriental shop, but any ingenious girl can easily make these and many other pretty things for her room. Cushions for the windsor chair, lampshades, dresses, hats, table runners, lampshades, bookshelf curtains, these are but a few of the ways in which she may employ the Japanese toweling.

One clever woman applied this material very happily in a washroom. She had covered the walls with plain gray burp and used a strip of the Japanese toweling in stone blue and white as a frieze. The blue birds proved to be veritable "bluebirds" to the little fellow who had blossomed about there all day. The washroom had been taken from the "Douxobors" and a big bag covered with stumps had to go.

As to its use in the dining room, the Japanese toweling tables set are becoming more and more popular. The designs are radelous, and the lace-like borders often used to soften the table. The wistaria, cherry blossom and pine needle patterns are most effective.

Taking it all in, you will hardly find a fabric so adaptable to a truly decorative scheme as Japanese toweling.

THE POTATO HABIT.

Now There's a Shortage in the Potato Tubers.

And now word comes that there is a potato shortage of $2,000,000 bushels, and it would seem as if we were to be deprived of still another cheap and nutritious staple.

But it may be sincerely said that the average American has seen the potato too often and in too many unattractive forms. "Fried potatoes" is an omnipresent Americanism, which is blame for much of our national lypelosis.

This, of course, puts them into the "starchy" class, along with wheat, bread, rice, macaroni, hominy, any of many of the cereals. BLOODROOT.

(By Biles Carman.)

When April winds arrive And the soft rains are here, Some morning by the roadside These gay folk appear.

We never see their coming, However sharp our eyes; Each year as if by magic They take us by surprise.

Anything that has properties of color, fabric, can hardly be imagined. Gauze and bedspreads have been sold in the oriental shop, but any ingenious girl can easily make these and many other pretty things for her room. Cushions for the windsor chair, lampshades, dresses, hats, table runners, lampshades, bookshelf curtains, these are but a few of the ways in which she may employ the Japanese toweling.

The girls were very anxious to inspect the rooms, and after much persuasion their father allowed my friend to take them through. "And remember you are not to play," he said as a parting injunction.

When the girls arrived their guide turned to them, "Look here," said he, "although you are forbidden to play, I will put on some money for you. What's your age?" he asked the young est one.

"Seventeen," she answered.

He pointed to a location on the number of the seats at the roulette table. The little ball fell into the number seventeen, and 35 hours were handed to the gambler by proxy.

At the next table my friend turned to the second girl. "What's yours?" he asked.

"Nineteen," she replied, and nineteen came up.

"Well," said my friend to the third daughter, "Come along, last, but not least."

"Twenty-three is mine," she answered.

A loss was put on twenty-three. The unlucky twenty-six came up. The unlucky twenty-four bore his disappointment like a philosopher, and the little party strolled through the "grounds," my friend walking ahead with "sweet" eyes.

"If I were to tell this story," said he, "I should be asked if I am Ananias. Nobody would believe that the number of your age and your sister's came as they did, and that your third sister had been born. I should be asked to read the story of George Washington and lay it to heart."

"But," said my friend to the youngest of the three graces, "my sister's age did come up."

"Great Scott! It didn't!" exclaimed my friend.

"Bush!" whispered the girl. "Will she told you won't, for she is twenty-three, but twenty-six?"

I must tell you, Elisa, an amusing story about a friend of mine, a young matron, who has an Irish laundress, a good and capable woman, but not good-looking. She is also from the "old country," but neither good nor capable, and he is fond of looking upon the beer, if nothing stronger, when it's foamy. Whenever he has satisfied his thirst, he has satisfied his appetite, and when he has eaten, he has been unable to move.

A report on the Conservation of Coal in Canada, issued by the Commission of Conservation, contains an account of the principal coal mines in Canada, with a large number of illustrations and diagrams. A summary is given of the legal provisions of the Royal Charter of the Royal Canadian Asylum, Australia, Japan,
England and Scotland. It is proposed that an engineering authority be appointed by the Dominion Government to approve of the methods to be employed at all mines operated under a Dominion Government lease; and that the chief inspector of mines of each province be associated with the engineering authority in so far as matters relating to the operation of mines in that province are concerned. Each officer would also investigate all applications for leasing of coal lands and to determine the conditions under which such leases should be granted.

One of the most remarkable things in the world is the easy way in which some people are induced to part with their money, especially if they do it without producing an example of the serpent
to be reft fall into "divine grace."

These snakes are placed and baited in such a manner as not only to catch the unwary, but those also who think they know. When a boom period is in full swing the people who set the snares are busy, as by the experience of this country during its recent times of over-excited prosperity, the bag of the trappers is always a heavy one. These gentleman do not let any kind of game escape them, and it is particularly gratifying to note the number of victims that fall into their hands. It is a rarely a surprise to find that the average amount of the average mortal, that it has become necessary to devise measures to protect investors in their own health and want of balance.

When a promising thing is discovered, no matter how much of a spectacle it may be, people rush to throw their money into it, until finally the chance of success may be of the very slightest.
As a rule it is only a very few who come out on top, and the members of that favored court are usually possessed of special or inside knowledge. Those who are not so fortunately situated must perforce be content with any picking that may be left on the bone. One would have thought that the direful experience of the real estate boom which collapsed so suddenly in 1908 would have been enough in people's minds to deter them from repeating the same kind of folly.
This does not appear to be the case, however, as whenever a gold or oil discovery is made, people will tumble over each other in their haste to place
some of their money in some of the numerous flotation which are customary in this connection. Speculation in real estate has some merits, because, if the purchasers are able to keep up their payments there is a chance of their patient being rewarded, it may be sooner or later. Their land will not run away, while the gold and the oil may prove altogether silly.

Some people are so constituted that a public浮躁ness causes them to align themselves with a chronic drinker. In either case the estimate result, if the habit is continued,
will almost inevitably lead to disaster,
as it is the desire in obtain wealth quickly and with little or no effort on the part of the individual, that has led to that extravagance and wastefulness which is at the bottom—very largely anyway—of the high cost of living today. That which is needed is the inculcation of a greater sense of financial sanity among people at large. The trained financial know-how to their actions might put the amateur investor in the narrow path of reason and common sense,
—a great more of these qualities are needed. Experience is a great teacher, notably, but it does not appear to be effective in this particular instance
—yet at all events. Legislation can help, and the trend of today is along right lines. The protective legislation now being enacted while primarily intended to bring about the elimination of all that is crooked in financial matters is really legislation to protect the investor from the consequences of his own crudity and short-sightedness. Legislation, experience, education and common sense, surely this quartet will produce some practical results.—Saturday Post.

Mrs. Briscoe Buried

The following is taken from the Chatham Daily News of May the 23rd:

"The remains of the late Mary Esther Harrington, wife of Fred T. Cook, were brought to Blairmore last Saturday by Rev.
Thos. Burnett.

Shortly after two o'clock the body was removed from her late residence, Briscoe apartments to Christ church, where the funeral service was conducted by Rev.
J. S. W. Howson, the rector.

There was a large representation of city business men, the mayor and representatives from the city council and the heads of the various city and county departments.

The casket was covered with flowers
from the family and friends of the deceased. It lay in state a large and beautiful floral emblem from the members of the city council.

At the close of the service the remains were removed to the cemetery where they were buried in the family plot.

The bereaved family who were all present at the funeral have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends."

A young gentleman in long pants, hailing from Calgary, and representing petroleum, has become very much stricken on a local basis, and so much so that he has undertaken to intercede in her behalf and share her little joys and sorrows. In one of his great outbreaks last week we noticed a slight seepage from the left eye and had reason to judge from this symptom that very raw material lay behind.

The territory within which the company proposes to exercise powers is the Fernie and Cranbrook water districts.

The exhibition put on at the opera house on Saturday night last by Ursus the Great and Sam Clapham was indeed interesting from a point of physical development and skill. Ursus is after the world's championship for strength at 165 pounds. He is both able and active and an admirable entertainer. Clapham is a wrestler of considerable note and is a competitor for the championship at 178 pounds.

A curious feeling came over our esteemed counsellor friend, Mike Rosse, last week, when the idea struck him that his wise judgment in oil stock investment had strengthened his bank account by some fifteen thousand dollars. Whether or not his dream ever materialized we do not know, but we doubt it from the fact that "Mike" still maintains his humble and genial disposition, and has not flown to parts unknown.

Not Raised So Few Things Caller Wasn't Sure About the Baby.

A FRIEND of mine moved out into the country last year," writes a correspondent from the West, "that he began life out of us by boasting about his 'country place.' He told how he raised all his own vegetables and animals and everything like that and was no longer dependent on the city for anything, and at last we went out to visit him."

"I said: 'This is excellent roast pork. Raise your own pigs?' 'Yes,' he faltered, 'but as it happens, this is not our pork. The pigs weren't ready to kill yet—we started so late—and I had to send to town for this.'

The same was true with every one of the vegetables. They hadn't got there in time to start a garden or a 'hot' house or cold frame or to see to the old orchard. Everything we had was from town, but next year it would be different. It was positively embarrassing after awhile.

"But after dinner my wife cleverly helped out the situation. Our host's little baby was brought in by the nurse for inspection. And after we had admired the kid sufficiently my wife said:

"I won't ask you if you raised yourself. He's mighty nice whether you did or not, and I sure that after you've been here long enough"—

A Knowing Parrot.

"What a fine parrot you have," said Harold to the young woman on whom he was calling. "How is he on imitating?"

"I'm not in the habit of sticking at the things he says," she said. "He can imitate almost anything."

"Over at Smith's," continued Harold, "they have a bird that can imitate a kiss to perfection. Can your bird do that?"

"No, indeed," answered Mabel indignantly. "Fancys can only imitate, and it is not likely that our bird would repeat a sound it is not accustomed to hear."

Then Polly spoke: "Don't, don't, dear." It said "Wait until I take this wretched bird out of the room"—Lippincott's.

The Haunted Man.

Again that ringing in his ears. It was the warning he had dreamed. He knew how time was coming. Yet, he thought he'd started at the sound, he seemed half dazed and wholly careless of the consequences.

But still the ringing in his ears!

"Drit! Drit!" he finally said, and springing from bed, the careworn commuter shot off the alarm clock and proceeded to dress for the 7:10 train.—Puck.

Getting All Ready.

Mother—What have you been doing so long?

Little Daughter—I heard papa say he was home again. Yet, I thought I'd get things all ready for him.

Mother—And did you?

Little Daughter—Yes. I got out his razor and mug and shaving brush and some court plaster.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FINGER NAILS DROPPED OFF

Skin Beneath Lifeless. Fingers Painful. Sleepless Nights. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Complaint Gone.

To April St., Halifax, N. S.—Some days ago my finger nail dropped off. The result was a belief of lead poisoning. The nails themselves were brittle and dry, the skin beneath being lifeless looking. My fingers were excessively painful and sensitive. I tried to treat them for about three months and the nails grew again but fell off again.

I then heard a great deal of Cuticura Soap and Ointment I sent for a sample of both in the hope of their helping my fingers which were very painful. After a few days the fingers were rubbed with the Cuticura Soap I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment all around the finger ends and gave gloves to prevent the ointment from getting on my hands with the Cuticura Soap. The Cuticura Soap and Ointment had a cooling effect and after using them for a few weeks the fingers became much less sore and beginning to assume a more healthy appearance; the fungus which had grown under the odd nail disappeared and the nail grew again.

This trouble had lasted about eighteen months before using Cuticura Soap and Ointment yet after using same for three months the fingers were again strong and painless and had entirely gone." (Signed) Ernest Rockford, Oct. 12, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and chemists everywhere, and are often sufficient. For a liberal free sample of each, with 2-p. book, send post-card to Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

CALLING HIM TO TIME.

A Touching Family Reminiscence Which Effectually the Purpose Desired.

THE young man was slow in clearing himself.

"I had an aunt," said the dear girl slowly. "She was engaged for twenty years. She gave up all her spare evenings to the man and never went anywhere with anybody else and burned lots of gas and coal for him and gave him a nice supper every little while."

"That's very strange," said the slow young man. "Engaged for twenty years?"

"Twenty years. The young man didn't know it, but aunt did. And didn't they—were growing old, you know—she acted as though she had to move the man. Wasn't that dreadful?"

"It was," said the young man. "I never heard of any one as slow as that."

The girl opened her blue eyes very wide.

"Don't you?" she asked, with painful distinctness.

A faint white light beat upon his dull brain.

Never Misses a Chance

In the campaign of 1912, said a congressman from the west, a horse thief in Wyoming was sentenced to be hanged. A large crowd had assembled to take in the event when the sheriff said, "Wait a minute, Bob, if there's anything you want to say to the man, let me get it off." "I'll wait," said the young man. "I never heard of any one as slow as that."

In Alimony Case

Judgment was reserved by the Appellate court at Calgary Friday morning in the matter of the appeal of Mrs. Mary Horne Lloyd, from the judgment of His Lordship, Mr. Justice Scott, in the case of Lloyd vs. Lloyd, which was heard before him some time ago at Lethbridge.

The plaintiff to the action, Mrs. Mary Horne Lloyd, brought action against her husband, Thomas Lloyd, for alimony from the defendant and the custody of their infant children. She alleged extreme cruelty on the part of her husband. The two were married September 18, 1908, and it was alleged that the acts of cruelty began the following April and continued until the plaintiff was unable to live with her husband any longer and she left him February 12, 1913.

As stated in the foregoing, the accused was heard by Mr. Justice Scott; he held that the plaintiff

Mr. Beach now spends his time, both day and night, in the boiler room administering to his poor wounded pet.

A young gentleman who has been spending time in Europe for some time past and who wears an air equal to that of the Emperor of Austria, took a young lady to dinner at a local hotel recently. Although an enormous meal was placed before her, he appeared to eat everything too cheap. Anyway the best wine was ordered, and he fully agreed finally, however, the waitress brought him with her checks. Down in the lower depths of his pocket she searched and searched, but failed to find them. She reached that point where it could cause him to prepare for tomorrow. Some kind advice from the waitress, however, enabled him to get away with it.

A young man, who had been engaged to a woman, had lost his money. Finally, however, he was able to get his hands on some cash. He had been trying to get his girl to come to him, but she had refused. JAMES CARTER.

Development of Provincial Policy For Technical Education.

Since the Hon. J. R. Boyle, Minister of Education, announced his intention to develop a Provincial policy for technical education, and appointed Dr. Jas. O. Miller as Director, considerable progress has been made.

The organization of this new department has been delayed owing to the fact that Dr. Miller has had to act as Principal of the Normal and School at Canmore until the close of the recent session, and was also assigned the duty of representing the Department of Education at the recent Agricultural Conference at Ottawa under the chairmanship of the Hon. Mr. Burrell, Minister of Agriculture.

During the month of March and April the Elector has been in session with the School Board, Board of Trade, and Tradesmen's Labor Councils in Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, and given public addresses on the subject of technical education in each of these cities. Address has also been given to conferences with school authorities held in Cardston, Magrath, Raymond, Stirling, Warner, Claresholm, Vernon and Red Deer. In each and every centre the anti-orators and citizens were keenly interested in the new developments involved in the policy of the Minister of Education to have our schools serve a larger number and give a somewhat modified service to those already able to take advantage of what the schools have to offer.

The sympathetic and active co-operation of the local communities with the Provincial Director in making the individual contributions to the work of technical education is most favorable for the successful development of the work represented by this new department.

In Medicine Hat, after a careful consideration of the City's present and future needs by the local educationists, the School Board and the Provincial Director, plans for a new composite high school have been prepared and accepted, and the construction of the building will be proceeded with as soon as the documents are sold. Equipped and furnished the building will cost about $300,000. The building provides for the following:

1. Administrative offices for the School Board and the Superintendent.

2. Offices for Specimens.

3. Splendid gymnasium, with locker, bath and swimming pool in connection therewith.

4. Three rooms for Commercial Department.

5. Classroom for academic instruction and library.

6. Laboratories for the various sciences taught in high school.

7. Full accommodation for courses in Domestic Science and Household Arts—kitchen and dining room, sewing, dressmaking, tailoring, needlework, and laundry.

8. Accommodation for special instruction in music (including instrumental) and art.

9. A splendid assembly hall with stage and dressing rooms.

10. Accommodation for shop work drafting, bench work in wood, wood turning and wood working machines, pattern work, forge work, machine shop practice, foundry practice and electrical workers equipment.

The school is designed and located so as to meet as far as possible the needs of the night class students as well as day students and part time students. When completed it will be an institution which will fit its needs with every phase of educational contact felt in the community, and will be an institution of which the city may well be proud.
